Corporate Name Change: "SATIMO" Becomes "MICROWAVE VISION"

On June 30th, 2009, the general meeting of SATIMO shareholders approved a resolution aimed at changing the company's corporate name.

As a result, the company is now called MICROWAVE VISION as of June 30th, 2009.

Furthermore, ALTERNEXT will also be undergoing a name change as of July 30th, when the symbol "ALSAT" will be replaced by "ALMIC."

The "MICROWAVE VISION" group will bring together SATIMO's historical activities, which are currently grouped within SATIMO INDUSTRIES, and ORBIT/FR, both of which are MICROWAVE VISION subsidiaries, 100% and 61.35% owned respectively.

The new name is part of the structuring strategy to become a world leader in electromagnetic field testing and measurement. It represents the group's goals to become stronger in all business sectors where its "microwave vision" technology can offer customers industrial solutions.

It also marks, for all SATIMO and ORBIT/FR customers, the culmination of the development of a group that is increasingly present in the global telecommunications, automotive, aerospace, and defense markets, offering extremely competitive solutions, the most innovative and comprehensive on the market.
